« AN AUTOPSY OF LANGUAGE ITSELF. »

1. SEMIOTIC TABLE OF IDIOMS

■ ARTIST STATEMENT

SEMIOTIC TABLE OF IDIOMS

What The Semiotic Table of Idioms stages is not merely a formal experiment in literalization — it is an autopsy of language itself. While conventional semiotic logic maintains a productive gap between word and world, between the phrase and the thing it gestures toward, Heydt's installation performs the obscene gesture of closing that gap entirely.

Structured in the form of a periodic table — that most authoritative of scientific grids, that supreme fantasy of total classification — the work parodies the Enlightenment impulse to order, quantify, and rationalize the fundamentally irrational. Idioms, those linguistic fossils embedded so deeply in everyday speech that they have ceased to register as figures at all, are treated here as chemical elements: discrete, catalogable, possessed of their own strange atomic weight and half-life.

Each sculpture functions simultaneously as monument and autopsy. It's raining cats and dogs becomes a literal downpour of cats and dogs — and in that literalization, something genuinely disturbing is revealed. Not merely the absurdity of the phrase, but the violence that metaphor has always quietly contained. The signifier and the signified do not simply blur; they collide, and in the wreckage of that collision we glimpse the ideological scaffolding that makes such phrases feel natural, inevitable, transparent — the dead logic that has been so thoroughly ingested it no longer tastes of anything at all.

The Semiotic Table does not interrogate language from a safe critical distance. It compels language to confess — to manifest exactly what it has spent centuries pretending it did not mean.

■ ARTIST STATEMENT

A/R — AUGMENTED REALITY

The ideological fantasy of the physical image is its absolute fixity — the belief that what is material is, by virtue of its materiality, stable, present, and real. Analog Ontologies destroys this fantasy with surgical precision. Heydt does not simply augment static assemblages with digital movement; she exposes the horrifying truth that the analog was never stable to begin with. The surface was always performing. The object was always haunted. By layering augmented reality directly onto material works, Heydt triggers what can only be described as a spatial short-circuit. The AR does not function as artificial overlay or decorative supplement — it arrives as the traumatic intrusion of the Real, the sudden visibility of the spectral machinery that was already operating beneath the surface of every apparently inert object. The technological does not mask the limitations of the material. It shatters the normative perceptual agreement through which those limitations were rendered invisible. What Analog Ontologies reclaims, ultimately, is AR itself — rescuing it from the entertainment complex and returning it to its most unsettling function: not the enhancement of reality, but the confrontation with reality's inherent, irreducible performativity.

2.2 ABSURDIST REALITY | AR MEMBIT

The most unsettling thing about Absurdist Reality is not the cash cow floating above the gallery floor, nor the pigs tracing impossible arcs across the ceiling, nor the elephant occupying — with perfect, immovable dignity — the corner of the room everyone has agreed not to look at. The most unsettling thing is that these images are invisible to the naked eye. You must hold up your device. You must look through the screen to see what is already there. And is this not the precise diagram of ideology itself? We have always required an apparatus to make the real legible. The screen does not distort reality. It reveals the distortion that was already operative. Consider what it means that we have built an entire civilization's worth of idioms — those compressed fossils of collective experience, those phrases so thoroughly absorbed they have ceased to register as figures of speech — around images we never intended to take seriously. The cash cow. The flying pig. The elephant in the room. We repeat these phrases daily, fluently, without once summoning the image they contain. This is repression operating not in the unconscious but in plain language, in broad daylight, in the mouth of every reasonable person who has ever said when pigs fly while remaining serenely untroubled by the aerodynamic implications. What Heydt's Absurdist Reality performs — and performs is precisely the right word — is a restoration of the image that language buried. Through augmented reality, accessible via QR code, deployed on the Membed platform, the suppressed visual content of idiom is returned to the space it was always already haunting. The cash cow materializes. The pigs achieve altitude. The elephant, that grandest of all collective denials, finally takes up the space it was always occupying whether we acknowledged it or not. The AR layer is not an addition to reality. It is a correction — a making-visible of what consensus perception had agreed to leave unseen. What Absurdist Reality stages is a double vision that cannot be resolved into a single coherent picture. Hold up the screen: pigs fly, cows generate capital, elephants occupy their rightful space in the center of collective attention. Lower the screen: the room returns to its bland, negotiated normalcy. The QR code is the key. But note what it opens: not a door to somewhere else, but a fuller view of exactly where you already are. The landscape was always absurd. The augmentation merely makes the augmentation visible. Absurdist Reality is an augmented reality installation by Sam Heydt, experienced via the Membed platform. Access through the QR code on site.

Falling is like this

THE FRAGILITY OF HUMAN RELATIONSHIPS.

An exploration of intimacy, rupture, and the space between connection and loss. Original analog assemblages in white frames, each a singular and irreducible moment. By constructing a lover/narrator, the series unsettles perceptions of love in an era of gender fluidity and technologically mediated intimacy.

Heterotopia

THE MIRROR AND THE RUIN — A WORLD WITHIN A WORLD.

Drawing on Foucault's heterotopia, this body of work collides two realities into a singular frame: events occurring simultaneously yet geographically estranged. Combining images of destruction with portrayals of the American Dream, harm here is harm there; illusion won't free us from reality.

PROGRESS IS A DESECRATION MASKED AS INDUSTRIALIZATION.

All transcendence has disappeared. The natural world has been liquidated and substituted with an artificial one. The silent landscape is a symptom of a world exploited beyond use and reduced to a bottom line — the ecological cost of progress is universal, and there is no outside to the collapse.

Blind Spot

OUT OF SIGHT, OUT OF MIND — BUT THERE IS A LIMIT TO EVERYTHING.

For decades the West has kept the repercussions of its actions out of sight. The two-decade war on terror produced a refugee crisis; overseas manufacturing drives climate change. You cannot reroute a cataclysmic storm. Political dissidence is drowned out by the white noise of media.

The world, no longer in focus, has succumbed to a blur of movement amid the obscurity of media images and endless distraction. Our collective consciousness drifts sedated by the flickering screen and the false promises it proposes for the future it truncates.

One Hundred Secondsto Midnight

THE EDGE IS CLOSER THAN WE THINK.

For fifty years, corporate power has been glorified and waste justified. Now we stand before a precarious future marked by mass extinction, diminishing resources, and climate change. Heydt presents a world on the periphery of history — haunted by the past, and built on it.

Logic of Excess

CAPITALISM HAS CANNIBALIZED THE CIVILITY IN OUR CIVILIZATION.

This series critiques the excesses of consumerism and the societal impacts of late capitalism. In a landscape where the boundaries between lived experience and spectacle have dissolved, the simulacrum does not hide the truth — it reveals its total absence.

Interchangeable Faces

SUBVERTING THE PALIMPSESTIC BODY.

Colonized, commodified, and reshaped by market forces, the female body has historically been a site where social perversions are inscribed. This series challenges imposed representations by embracing abstraction and a fluid understanding of gender and selfhood.

WHERE THE PERFECT IMAGE BREAKS.

The sublime glitch is the persistence of pleasure and ritual precisely at the moment their foundations collapse. In the rupture of the seamless image — the error, the artifact, the break in the surface — the constructed nature of the picture becomes briefly, uncomfortably visible.

■ ARTIST STATEMENT

MERCHANDISE — KITSCH | ART BODEGA

KITSCH | Art Bodega is a gallery, atelier, and boutique — and the deliberate impossibility of that trinity is precisely the point. Launched by internationally acclaimed multidisciplinary artist Sam Heydt, with previous iterations in Miami Beach, Newport, and Vienna, KITSCH is the latest and most expansive incarnation of a pop-up concept that has always understood the shop floor as a philosophical proposition. Here, fine art collides with functional design. The precious sits beside the discarded. The rare is democratized — made available at every price point, stripped of the exclusivity that typically governs who gets to participate in aesthetic culture and on what terms. This is not commerce dressed as critique. It is critique honest enough to admit it operates within the very system it interrogates. KITSCH does not pretend to stand outside consumption; it stages consumption as the site of inquiry — a curated exploration of material culture that actively erodes the boundary between observer and participant, between the object contemplated and the object desired, between the artwork on the wall and the one you carry home. To enter KITSCH is to become briefly, uncomfortably legible to yourself as a subject formed by exactly the forces the work puts on display.

Anaglyph 3D is the name given to the stereoscopic 3D effect achieved by means of encoding each eye's image using filters of different (usually chromatically opposite) colors, typically red and cyan. Anaglyph 3D images contain two differently filtered colored images, one for each eye. When viewed through the "color-coded" "anaglyph glasses," each of the two images reaches the eye it's intended for, revealing an integrated stereoscopic image. The visual cortex of the brain fuses this into the perception of a three-dimensional scene or composition.

« NOT FOR SALE. STRUCTURE, ATMOSPHERE, ARCHITECTURE OF THE SHOW. »

■ ARTIST STATEMENT

DISPLAY & DECOR

The display apparatus is not backdrop. It is the third author of any exhibition — the grammar through which the work becomes legible. This section indexes the fixtures, furniture, and architectural gestures that hold the rest of the catalogue in place: not for sale, but structurally inseparable from it.

■ ARTIST STATEMENT

FILM INSTALLATIONS

In SLIDE, HEYDT masterfully confronts the ideological paradox of memory in the digital age, where the static nostalgia of analog slides is reanimated through augmented reality, exposing the inherent fragility of our constructed narratives. The work operates as a dialectical tension between the Real and the Imaginary: the slides, once fixed fragments of history, are destabilized by digital overlays — fractured sounds, flickering images, and archival detritus — that amplify their impermanence. What emerges is not merely a nostalgic longing for the past, but an unsettling critique of how technological mediation transforms memory into a site of both preservation and erasure. In SLIDE, the material artifact becomes a spectral object, a paradoxical presence that gestures toward the void — the absence at the heart of all attempts to fix meaning, to hold time still.

BIRDCAGE: a virtual bird in a physical cage.
